

The Registrar's Office is pleased to announce the addition of a new course to the SMU catalog. This course, titled "Introduction to Business Law," is designed to provide students with a comprehensive understanding of legal principles and their application in the business world. The course is taught by Professor John Doe, who has over 10 years of experience in the field.

The course covers a wide range of topics, including contract law, tort law, and intellectual property. Students will also learn about the legal environment of business and the role of law in the economy. The course is required for students pursuing a degree in Business Administration and is also a valuable elective for students in other disciplines.

The course is offered in both the fall and spring semesters. The fall semester course begins in August, and the spring semester course begins in January. The course is taught in a lecture format with interactive activities and case studies. Students will have access to a variety of resources, including textbooks, online materials, and a dedicated support team.

For more information about this course, please contact the Registrar's Office at (972) 261-1414 or visit our website at www.smu.edu/registrar. We look forward to helping you succeed in your studies.

- (4) Utilize the professional placement services of one of the companies that has emerged over the past two decades to address child care needs of universities and other organizations.

The number of children five years and younger of our employees who might seek assistance with child care is approximately 370 children, according to [redacted] on the University Health Care Plan. Therefore, when considering child care as an employee benefit, the first logical question would be how best to provide support for the largest number of these children and their families as well as for all new employees that join us every year with children
