141. note 14,
142. To be classified in categories 5-9 of the RUCC a county must meet two requirements. First, it must be considered 'non-metropolitan' by the United States Office of Management and Budget. To meet this requirement, the county may not contain any urban center over 50,000 people, nor may more than 25% of its population regularly commute to or from a county with such an urban center. (One hundred and seventy-two Texas counties are non-metropolitan; these range from RUCC codes 4 through 9.) Second, a county must not contain any urban center with a population of 20,000 or more or be adjacent to another metropolitan county.
